

RALPH SUDFELD - BIO

Ralph Sudfeld is the President/CEO of Assist International. In 2011, he joined Assist International as the Executive Vice President, and became President in 2015. Ralph has developed relationships with the highest levels of government in developing countries, and he continues to build partnerships with NGO's, foundations, corporations and governments. The mission of Assist International is to provide life-giving solutions for children, families and communities around the world that bring health, opportunity and hope. Since 1990, over 600 projects have been completed in over 60 countries of the world.

Ralph Sudfeld has his B.A. from the University of Alberta, Canada, and his M.A. from Wheaton College Graduate School in Illinois. While living in Wheaton, Ralph had the privilege of working a research associate for Management Development Associates (MDA) – an international consulting firm specializing in strategic planning and development for non-profit humanitarian organizations. Before joining Assist International, Ralph worked in the non-profit sector and pastoral ministry including 14 years as President and CEO of Modesto Christian School and Neighborhood Ministries. Ralph and his wife Michelle live in Northern California. They have five grown children who have traveled the world and share a passion for meeting the needs of the most vulnerable.