

Eric Johnsen, MBA, MDiv, CEO, R3

R3 – Rehabilitation, Restoration and Respite is a local non-profit 501c3 organization dedicated to developing micro home housing communities for housing our homeless, parolees, farm workers, veterans, students and others on very limited incomes in very affordable housing while providing and coordinating wrap-around support services that produces stability, security and hope in the lives of those we serve.

Mr. Johnsen has an extensive career in several different business disciplines including healthcare administration with hospitals, medical groups and MSOs; executive compensation planning and design and specialized financing tools; insurance expertise with community banks and the medical malpractice markets; construction and project management from ADUs to urgent care facilities and multi-million dollar outpatient campuses; and non-profit start-ups, including operations, marketing, financing and service development.

Eric's key passion is for the homeless, ex-prisoners and dispossessed and restoring the lives of those who are broken and without hope. He has served on the Board of Community Homeless Solutions – the largest homeless housing agency in Monterey County – for the past eleven years and currently as the interim Executive Director for the organization. Additionally, he has served on the National Homeless Healthcare Advisory Board and has provided the leadership and business planning expertise to implement a local respite care program for recuperative housing and assistance for homeless individuals discharged from an acute care hospital stay.

With R3, Eric leads the organization in its' regional expansion and its' focus on the design, planning and development of micro home communities to house homeless, ex-prisoners, farm workers, teachers and at-risk families. With this comes social enterprises as well as the early stages of an ADU development social enterprise for building, managing and placing ADU units throughout the county. R3 has established a unique building program with the CA prison system to build tiny homes inside of prison vocational programs, both providing hope and actual construction skills for prisoners when they are released, but also producing homes in the vocational programs that directly give back to the community in amazing ways. Eric is actively involved at Shoreline Church is leading annual mission trips and providing leadership to the Love Our Central Coast serve days a couple times annual with approximately 25 other local churches.
