

Joe Thomas - BIO

Joseph Thomas is a professor of Christian History at Urbana Theological Seminary. His book, Perfect Harmony, looks at a group of churches who practiced interracial fellowship during the Jim Crow era of segregation.

Joe is also the founder of Life Together House, an organization committed to creating original content to help revitalize the church. As part of his work at Life Together House, he has co-written two plays with Doug Peterson: "Friends Indeed: The Improbable Friendship between Ben Franklin and George Whitefield" which premiered in 2019 and "Come Before Winter: Dietrich Bonhoeffer in the Wilderness" which premiered in 2022.

Joe has also collaborated with Jonathan King to produce Life Together House's first podcast, "Wayfinding with Dietrich Bonhoeffer." Life Together House is currently working on turning "Come Before Winter" into a radio drama.

Joe also leads Christian History tours throughout Europe and writes study guides for Pinnacle Forum.
